

Date: 8 February 2011
Article Submitted for publication
TVT Mum member Hayley

Hi everyone,
Hope you are as well as you can be!!! Welcome to all the new ladies great to hear from you but sad that you too are suffering. I am noticing the rapid increase in new poor sufferers every week coming on the site. It is terrible that this maiming is still continuing!!!.

I am sorry that I am not too talkative lately have felt all talked out, can't find the energy to tell my story one more time cos it doesn't get any better every time I tell!!! Here is a quick run through for you new ladies!!!

I go through periods of real lows and slight highs but that has been the same since 2007 and my hysterectomy followed by vaginal meshes anterior and posterior repair and TVTO.

Since then has followed partial mesh removal, septicemia due to the infection, removal of middle section of the TVTO pierced urethra catheter for 2 and half weeks , virilant pseudomonas infection. The remaining meshes are lost in my body I know somewhere in the pelvis no one wants to remove them or can remove them due to the risks it would pose and I suffer on a daily basis. I am so severely scarred vaginally that my vagina is now distorted and at least 2 inches too short, this make having sex nigh impossible and excruciating.

In November last year I saw another surgeon after giving myself a year's break from surgery as I could take no more to discuss my options sadly he offered to put another TVT in me but could offer nothing more, no further mesh removal, no removal of scar tissue because it could cause further scar tissue and I have to live with what I have got. There is no way I will ever have any further meshes ever put in me he told me that he did not agree with meshes being put in the vaginal area as the meshes are designed to be kept sterile and put in a sterile area, needless to say the vaginal area is not ever sterile so is it any wonder so many of us have suffered with continual infections and such like.

If any of you feel like making a positive move for all us ladies suffering go on the website TVT MUM and follow the links to sign the petition to David Cameron to have the meshes and TVT'S and TVTO'S removed off the market to prevent other poor ladies suffering as we have!!

Try and get anyone who knows you and knows how you have suffered to sign the petition too every signature counts because we should all count too considering how much we have suffered.

Let's all do our bit ladies!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Sending Lots of Love,

H x x x